CPFL UCD Signature Document*

ChurchPlansForLess.com LLC (CPFL), a division of A/E Technologies, Inc., offers Uncertified Construction Documents (UCD's) for all designs listed on our website for use in your building project. These are sets of AutoDesk Architectural Desktop 2004 documents provided in both electronic and hard copy format. The purchase of these documents includes a "Single Use" license which will allow your architect or design build firm to modify and use the plans for your church construction.

Remember these plans will need to be updated, brought up to the standards of your local building codes, and certified prior to construction. This can be done by ChurchPlansForLess, your local architect, your design build firm, or any certified professional architect and/or engineer. If you should decide that we are your architect of choice for the certification needs 70% or more of the original price paid for UCD's will be applied towards the final set of CERTIFIED construction drawings. These funds are non refundable. Even though these plans might be used in your area without architectural certification, we would encourage you to have the UCD plans reviewed and certified with the International Building Codes 2003 or 2006. This is an inexpensive insurance for your church.

Please initial here after reading this paragraph _____

Your Uncertified Construction Documents order with CPFL will show the materials, workmanship, finishes and equipment required to complete those parts of the project outlined included. We will inform you of the last date the plans were certified, updated and last location of the design (county and state). You can put the plans out to bid to help you understand what the project cost could be.
